

Kerrie's Predictions for 2016

- ISIS will continue to be a problem globally, but in hindsight many countries will unite to fight for a free democracy in the world with great force, tighter security and success. The countries most affected will be major cities in Europe, Australia and the USA. A Sydney icon may be a target as well.
- Great unsettlement in Russia and the surrounding countries, as tensions will escalate. I also see an assassination attempt on the Russian president who will have less popularity with his people.
- The Middle East will continue to fight and I see no peace in sight for many years.
- Real estate in Australia will drop in the second part of the New Year and there will be an increase in interest rates.
- Australia will boom in world trade.
- Petrol prices will increase due to Middle East tensions.
- The liberal government with the new leader, Turnbull, will continue to be successful and stick to its agenda, thus pleasing most Australian people.
- New government strategies will be on the agenda to fight terrorism and the problems of refugees will begin to be looked at in another way due to demand and public sympathy, allowing them into our communities.
- Extreme weather conditions continue around the globe due to climate change, with drought, tornados, bushfires, wild seas and winds, tsunami and volcanic explosions in a few countries.
- Death of a royal in the British family.
- Four more international flights go down due to terrorism.
- There will be a breakthrough for breast and prostate cancers.
- A famous American actor suffers a heart attack due to the stress and controversy around him

Questions

Am I taking the right steps towards my career goals?

You need to have faith. You are a creative person and it is very important for you to express yourself and learn to have a harder shell for protection. Patience is the key and travel, as it will open you up to understand many nationalities and ways of the human nature, but you need to finish things.

You were born to write so I eventually see books around you when you are older as story telling is one of your passions. You also need to follow your dreams and believe in yourself then your ambitions will be met.

Also I am hearing an elderly woman in spirit telling me you love art and music. Always trust your feelings, inner knowing and intuition, as it is usually correct. You will help many people less fortunate than yourself.

It's good to know I'm heading in the right direction. I recently lost my Nana, so it's comforting to know she's watching over me.

Will I have any luck soon in our bridging visa (which is in the queue)?

I see delays around you and patience is needed, as you will receive some good news in the not so distant future. I have a spirit man telling me that everything will be ok.

I see relief and eventually great happiness coming your way, so please understand that you will be ok and not to worry.

Thank you, Kerrie.
